

ANOTHER HUMANOID SEEN

The following report, received from a fourteen year old boy living in nearby Westbury is one of the most interesting that we have so far investigated. The boy (whose name we are not publishing here) is not at all the imaginative type. He related his experience to us in front of his mother and had previously written the account for his teacher at school. As soon as he had returned home following the incident, he related the experience to his parents. His father did not believe the story, but his mother who incidentally had a UFO sighting the previous day, is inclined to believe her son even though the actual event is difficult to comprehend. For the record, we were extremely impressed with the intelligence of and the way in which the boy reported the details of his uncanny experience. The case ties in with other sightings of humanoid shapes seen in the district and in other parts of the world.

Here now is the boy's story as told:

It was an extremely foggy morning, my friend Ian and I were cycling to Upton Soudamore from Westbury. Just passing Wellhead Farm, Ian was well in front of me out of sight in the fog. Suddenly I felt very dizzy, so much so, that I had to dismount from my cycle and walk.

I glanced into the field on my right, there was nothing. Again, I was compelled to look. Out of nowhere came a humanoid. It was about eight yards away from me. It stood almost nine feet high apparently solid in a grass crop. It was humanoid in a sense though it lacked the characteristic five fingers, instead it had three. The middle finger starting slightly below what we would term the wrist. It lacked also hair, ears and nose. There were markings suggesting a mouth and eyes. It glistened as though wet and wore simple clothing, a tunic with a sash and sock like shoes none of which looked to have seams.

Although humanoid in shape, its head was out of proportion, the legs short and stout, and the arms reaching below the knees, but above where the ankle would be. The left arm kept swaying to and fro during the time I saw it (about half a minute). Before it vanished I regained my senses for I seemed to be in a sort of trance, and called to my friend as I was scared. As I called the left finger of the left hand of the humanoid touched the middle finger on what appeared to be a black spot or lump. In a matter of seconds it simply vanished.

Ian unfortunately never saw the creature. Throughout the whole experience my left arm rose very slowly to about seventy five degrees and slowly went back down again. This was repeated twice. I had no control over this reaction. I have never felt dizzy before or since."

Molecular structure, the combination of solid matter, transmuted through the ambient realms of time and space from point A to point B by means of altering the atomic structure and directing the atoms to the required destination where re-assembly to the original state takes place, is one major possibility. As a form of travel, one which is not being overlooked by the scientists of today, this re- and de-assembly of the molecular structure could well account for the apparent appearance from nowhere of UFOs and humanoids.

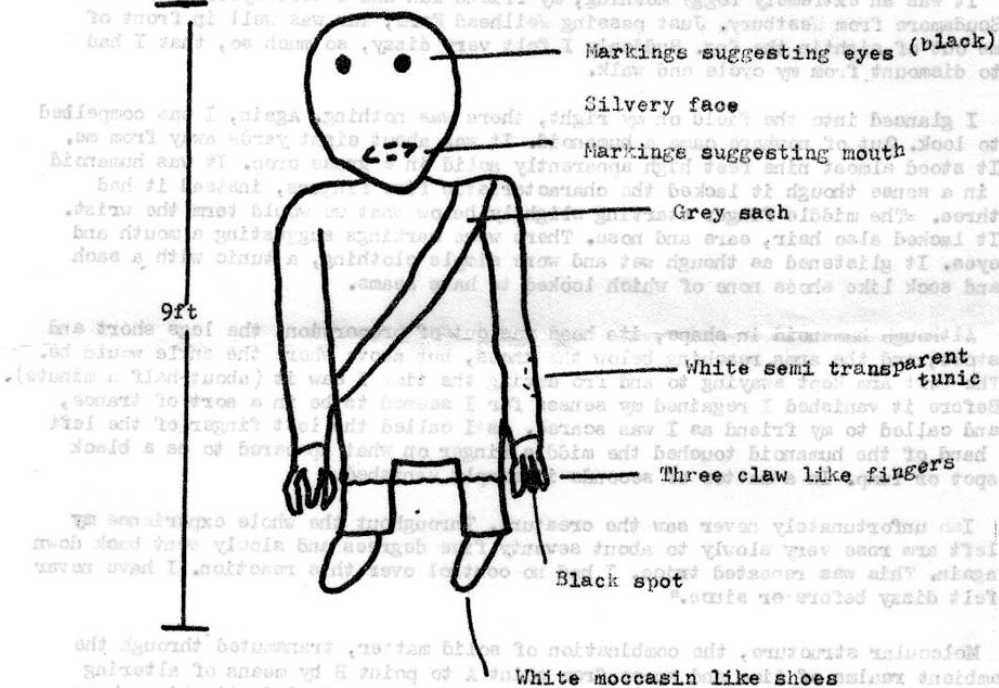

There have been numerous confirmed radar sightings of UFOs which could not be seen by the naked eye. We also have thousands of sightings in which the objects suddenly appeared and/or disappeared instantaneously in front of the witnesses. All these events seem to prove that a large part of the UFO phenomenon is hidden from us and is taking place beyond the limited range of our eyes. We can only see the objects and the entities under certain circumstances, and perhaps only certain types of people can see them at all.

Thus, by all the standards of our sciences (and our common sense), the UFOs do not really exist as solid objects. They may be a constant part of our reality. We cannot therefore, catalogue them as manufactured products of some extraterrestrial civilisation sharing our own dimensions of time and space. They are extra-dimensional, able to move through our spacial coordinates at will but also able to enter and leave our three-dimensional world. If this hypothesis is true, then they may also be operating beyond the limitations of our time coordinates.....

.....Our future may be their past, and our years may be minutes to them. Thus they could have total knowledge of the things in store for us.

The great mass of observational data fully supports the hypothesis of transmutation. Glowing objects change colour, size and form, and this fact indicates that they are comprised of energy which can be manipulated to temporarily simulate terrestrial matter. Such energies must be somehow collected together at the invisible frequencies, and then frequency changes are brought about to 'lower' them into the visible spectrum. Once they become visible, they can then organise themselves into atoms and produce any desired form.

OTHER HUMANOID REPORTS AROUND WARMINSTER

Early winter 1967: Two fairly tall figures wearing dark grey close fitting garments with a peculiar sheen, rounded helmets on their heads fashioned from black plastic. When approached, one raised a gloved hand and both vanished.

January 18th 1968: More than two dozen tiny elfin figures no more than four inches in height. Each in turn zoomed up to the height of average Man.

January 21st 1966: Three creatures like frogmen very white faces, wide-spaced eyes glittering belts, grey garbed. Big shoulders, rather large heads and thinner legs.

The following sighting report was received by Mrs H. Ley who lives in the village of Corton about six miles from Warminster. The report indicated that a wave of UFO reports was in the wind.

CORTON July 13th 1972 Clear night, little wind, no moon visible.

Observed: 01.55hrs - 02.55hrs (visible for one hour)

Mrs Booker (whose house adjoins mine) was in bed but got up to go to the bathroom. On returning to her bedroom she saw a large bright light through her window, high in the sky S.W., time 01.55hrs. She watched it and then at 02.00hrs called me. It was the colour of a star, large and very brilliant. I thought at first it was Jupiter and went outside to look. The position was south-west. As I looked, it diminished until it disappeared, becoming smaller and smaller. It then re-appeared immediately.

I joined Mrs Booker at her window and she said that it had moved to the right and also sunk lower in the sky, as well as disappearing and re-appearing. I still thought it might be Jupiter. I went outside once again with a naval telescope. Through this I could see the light as a circular shining spot.

I rejoined Mrs Booker, by this time the light had moved very definitely to the far right of vision (westwards) and sunk very much lower in the sky.

I then went outside once more and noticed that the light was definitely moving. It seemed to be sending off rays to the bottom right. I also thought I saw a smaller light crossing in front of it and around it on several occasions. The diminishing and re-appearing happened several times during the hour we watched.

Finally the light grew smaller and smaller, moving westwards until it disappeared from sight at 02.55hrs.

MYSTERY SOUND

From the estimated point to the west where Mrs Ley last saw the mystery light, came a report from a married couple living at Sutton Veny (a village approx five miles west of Corton) They were awoken at 03.00hrs on July 13th by what they describe as a kind of whistling sound similar to that of a boomerang skimming through the wind.

Two civilian drivers on night exercise army training on Salisbury Plain reported that at approx 01.45hrs on July 13th they watched a blue-white light moving about erratically in the sky in and out of cloud, for several minutes. They estimate the light to be south of their position, in the direction of Heytesbury. Corton and Sutton Veny villages lie directly in between this point.

MORE AMBER LIGHTS

Alan Smith of Torquay, Devon with four other skywatchers were on Cradle Hill on the evening of July 13th. Alan described seeing in the presence of the other witnesses, seeing a bright slow silently moving light above the copse atop of the hill. As they watched the amber coloured light, it dimmed twice in brilliance before finally vanishing.

The sighting of amber coloured lights in the vicinity of Cradle Hill copse and also at Starr Hill, has caused considerable mystery and some controversy. The possibility of these lights as being aircraft or helicopters was considered but for the absence on all occasions during sightings of sound. The Newsletter has formally written to various sources including the Ministry of Defence (Army) to check whether military or civilian aircraft over Salisbury Plain carry purely amber-coloured navigation lighting.

LOOK OUT, LOVERS!

By HARRY WARSCHAUER

SAY, FELLAS, have you heard the one about the Englishman, the Irishman and the brawny young farmer from Brazil?

Between them these three gentlemen have started a flap in flying saucer circles . . . and, just as intriguingly, revealed a possible new dimension to sex.

It could be that when certain people make love they send telepathic signals into outer space.

Flying saucers home in on them and, hey presto, the saucers land on Earth rather as jets approaching Heathrow sometimes follow radio signals from the airport to get on to the runway.

It may sound a fantastic theory and it's easy to imagine Romeos changing their patter to (girls be warned): "It's not sex I'm after . . . I just want to contact the flying saucer men."

But at least one expert on unidentified flying objects is seriously considering the sexy wavelengths possibility.

Too shy

He is Mr. Norman T. Oliver who has raised the subject in "Gemini," the leading U.F.O. journal which he edits.

"I feel sure lots of people have had such contacts but are too shy to come out into the open about them," he said. "I'd like to hear from them."

Several eminent men are consultants to "Gemini." They include Air Marshal Sir Victor Goddard and Dr. Geoffrey G. Doel, the radiologist.

Last week Mr. Oliver, 46, an accounts executive with the Metropolitan Water Board and a member of the British Astronomical Society, solemnly told me of these remarkable experiences claimed by three men.

The first, of a 27-year-old ENGLISHMAN, was on the Derbyshire - Staffordshire border.

He said he had made love to his girl-friend at his home, and then felt impelled to go out into the country.

He saw an unidentified

Air Marshal Goddard: "I suppose sex comes into everything nowadays."

Norman Oliver: Three fascinating tales of sex and flying saucer people.

flying object - a U.F.O. - which landed about half a mile away.

After waiting about 10 minutes, one of the U.F.O. crew, who looked like an ordinary human being, came to meet him.

He told the contactee that his craft came from outside our solar system.

Rhythm

They had not come specifically to contact him. It was merely that his love-making had established a kind of telepathic line of communication between him and the saucer people.

In certain humans, sexual activity "charged" them to a rhythm compatible with the telepathic wavelength of any beings from outer space within range. The rhythm gave them a beam to home in on.

The contactee said the man from the saucer spoke English well, but had some difficulty about some of our more specific sexual terms.

He explained that their planet was very much like ours, and so were the people. But they were more highly developed and lived two to three times longer. Their way of reproduction was similar to the human way.

According to some reports quoted by Mr. Oliver, a number of Earthlings have actually had sexual intercourse with the flying saucer visitors.

The young BRAZILIAN farmer, for instance. He was ploughing when his tractor went dead and a spacecraft landed near by.

He was carried aboard, undressed, disinfected and had blood samples taken.

Then he was joined by a nude saucer girl, a well-made, blue-eyed blonde with thin lips, high cheekbones, freckled arms and no body hair.

She embraced him, and they made love. The farmer was then given his clothes back and escorted off the saucer, which took off.

Later the farmer found his tractor was working.

A very similar incident is reported to have happened near Belfast.

A young IRISHMAN is said to have been blacked out one night by an intense light from a spacecraft.

He came to on the craft, his head and wrists secured. There were four men and a girl—who was blue-eyed and blonde, with high cheekbones and freckles—just as the Brazilian experienced.

The Irishman, too, had sexual intercourse with the girl—who told him they came from another galaxy and wanted the seed of Earth men.

Said Mr. Oliver: "I was a little concerned about touching on sex in the magazine in case some of our readers objected."

"I don't want people to think that we want everybody to make love in the hope of contacting extraterrestrial beings. So far nobody has objected to the article."

What do Mr. Oliver's consultants on "Gemini" think of the article?

Dr. Doel, a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, and a Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, told me:

Very good

"If you accept the possibility of contact by extraterrestrials you must accept every aspect of such contacts as possible. And that must include the sexual."

"I think the article is very good. From our point of view, this is only a very minor aspect of U.F.O. research but you cannot leave it out."

Out of Thermals

GLIDER'S CRASH LANDING

A glider taking part in an air race on Sunday 10th July ran out of thermals—air currents—and made a forced landing in a field at Cradle Hill, on land belonging to Mr. Geoffrey Gale, of Parsonage Farm, Warminster.

This is the noted hill used by sky-watchers who still maintain vigils at weekends in search of the famed Warminster "Thing"—and some of the regular watchers were soon at the site to offer help.

But the pilot, Mr. Len Ballard, of Usk, Monmouthshire, was unhurt, his craft undamaged. P/Sgt. J. Bosley, Warminster police, rushed to the scene in case of emergency, but the fallen glider was later towed away on a trailer, rueful pilot returning home.

The race was from an airfield at Compton Abbas, near Shaftesbury, Dorset. The course directed competitors to proceed to Longleat, there make a turn, go on to Boscombe Down, and glide back to the starting point in Dorset.

The incident created a small stir of excitement on a quiet Sunday afternoon at Warminster, when many people were glued to TV sets to watch the Wimbledon tennis final between Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase.

We are aware that the Warminster phenomenon is the result of the manipulation of energies and frequencies by intelligence which when encountered takes either the form it desires or is perceived in a particular form according to the percipient. It can be seen in a range from gigantic spacecraft to tiny balls of light. As living entities from little green men to awesome giants.

We possess evidence to prove that this is occurring today. This month, we feature some local tales which indicate that this phenomenon is nothing new. The following cases centre around Cradle Hill. Some of the stories are over a century old.

KIDNAPPERS HOLE

Close by Farmer Geoffrey Gale's Parsonage Farm, cut deeply into the side of Arn Hill, is Kidnapper's Hole - scene of many UFO manifestations - the name Kidnapper's Hole? One legend has it that highwaymen used to hide here, waiting to way-lay unsuspecting farmers as they returned with well filled pockets from Warminster market. Another legend has it that the name originates from flint knapping, with the ground round about full of pits and mounds as though quarried for flints by the Stone-age dwellers of these prehistoric ramparts. The most remarkable UFO manifestation took place at the spot on August 27th 1969 (See issue No.6.)

MUD COTTAGES

The footpath that skirts the Kidnapper's Hole on Arn Hill leads to a stile that once gave access to Mud Cottages, so-called because they were actually built of mud bricks. There are strange ghost tales associated with these isolated cottages, which lay onetime close to Cradle Hill Copse. Beyond Mud Cottages once stood a farm occupied by a solitary farmer, and one night he was aroused to find the forms of three men removing the carcass of a sheep he had killed the previous night.

He threw a stick at them, but they grinned so fiendishly that he fled back upstairs, intending to hide in his bed. The bed mysteriously moved away, so that he fell onto a sheepskin rug, and at once the rug also slid away, carrying him down the stairs to the cellar. The poor fellow found it impossible to climb the stairs again, and despairingly he sat down on the sheepskin rug, which suddenly whisked him upstairs again amid the crowd of grinning ghosts, who assured him that one day he too would be admitted to their fraternity.

In the morning he pegged down the sheepskin rug, which was long shown to the incredulous as proof of his veracity. The farmer was so terrified after his experience that he burnt the house and went to live in Westbury.

THE WOMAN OF MUD COTTAGES

A lonely man who once lived at Mud Cottages one night felt his bed shaking. It moved across the room. The man was so frightened he couldn't get out. Then he saw another bed in the room bearing an old woman with long hair, wrinkled face, bony fingers and back bent almost double.

Getting out of bed, the old woman went to a cupboard and took a bottle, walked to the stairs - and fell down them; the fellow then jumped out of his bed, and saw her lying at the foot of the stairs, her head bleeding terribly, but when he descended to see what he could do, the old woman had vanished, but there was one drop of blood where she fell.

ANOTHER HAUNTED HOUSE ON WARMINSTER DOWN

A house on Warminster Down farmed by Mr. Stiles was once the scene for poltergeist activity. Crockery rattled and fell, and doors shut of their own accord and were only reopened with difficulty. The house was finally demolished.

ELM HILL GHOST STORY

One night a poor old woman who lived in a cottage on Elm Hill heard a ghost cry "Follow me!" This she did, into the next room, where the voice ordered "Pull out this stone." Finding a loose stone, she pulled it out and there found a number of silver coins, which she took into her bedroom. Next night the ghost came again and led her to the same loose stone. Highly hopeful, the poor old soul removed the stone - and saw the face of the ghost grinning at her! The woman's mind became affected by this occurrence and she later committed suicide.

Mystery red light seen over Forest

"Echo" Staff Reporter

WHY no one else has reported a strange red light which appeared over the Forest area near Lymington last night is puzzling Sir John and Lady Chichester, of Batramsey Lodge, Boldre, Lymington.

"Other people must have seen it," said Sir John today. The light, a red pulsating round object, was first seen by the Chichester family hovering north-west of Batramsey Lodge at about 11.45 last night.

Tremendous speed

"It then dropped at tremendous speed and disappeared below the tree line in the direction of Ringwood," he said.

Shortly afterwards the same or another light, exactly like the first, appeared further to the north and circled the area before once again dropping below the tree line.

The family watched the light for about a quarter-of-an-hour.

Flashing lights

"It certainly wasn't an aircraft," said Sir John. "Aircraft have flashing lights, not pulsating ones, and they certainly do not move up and down in the way this one was doing."

His daughter who viewed the object through binoculars had, he said, described it as being circular in shape and a mass of holes with flames shooting out.

STOP PRESS - LATEST REPORTS

9th August 1972

Between 20.50hrs and 20.55hrs, Ian Collis of Westbury, Wilts watched a peculiar looking white cigar-shaped cloud. It vanished, and then re-appeared considerably lower in the sky. This dissolved and then a third appeared. This bright white light moved slowly right to left. Ian managed to photograph the UFO. Full details in next Newsletter.

10th August

Miss A. Hayman, Miss W. Brown and Mr. John Bennet saw from the car park of Preston House, Warminster an amber coloured light which travelled from south to north before fading out. At this stage the light appeared to change to a reddish colour.

Other reports are coming in from around Warminster and throughout the country as this Newsletter goes to Press. Further details and a comprehensive report in September's Issue.

Tony Justice—genuine and sincere.

A few days ago Mr. Tony Justice informed me, quietly and matter-of-fact, that not just one but several "flying saucers" had been observed by him. The first, one evening two years ago near Warminster in Wiltshire, was "a big orange ball travelling fairly slowly, about 50 m.p.h., and about 500 ft. in circumference, which came towards us over a hill. When about half a mile away and at a height of about 2,000 ft., it changed course abruptly and went across Salisbury Plain. It had a red pulsating light at rear."

Likewise at Warminster, with 15 or more others, he saw a streak of light travelling at "something around the speed of light," and then an orange glow at the end of the streak, this orange going elliptical and disappearing as a streak. UFOs (unidentified flying objects) Mr. Justice claims to have noted additionally include pinpoint of light resembling stars.

He agreed that if these objects were not natural phenomena, they could have been man-produced on this planet and not necessarily the inventions of beings from outer-space. But he is convinced they were the latter.

UFOs stop soccer match

EIGHT unidentified flying objects are reported to have interrupted a soccer match watched by 2,000 people near Rio de Janeiro.

Witnesses claimed they saw the UFOs flying over the soccer field at Campos, 130 miles north of Rio.

The noiseless craft emitted an orange coloured light while they flew over the field. Players stopped to watch.

'Eyeball' in the sky

AN UNIDENTIFIED flying object — described as "almost like part of an eyeball with lashes of light" — was spotted in the sky over Midford early today.

Mrs Babs Honey and her husband, of Upper Midford Farm, were awakened by a bright light just before dawn, and watched the object for half an hour as it arched over their house and into a cloud bank.

Mrs Honey, 54, a former journalist, said today, "It was very brightly lit and looked like part of an eyeball, only solid. The light coming off it looked like eyelashes and there was a sort of beating noise, rather like a heartbeat."

"I've seen several things in the sky but my husband was a complete sceptic — but today he had me downstairs making cups of tea so he could watch it from the bedroom."

'ELLO, 'ELLO, IS THAT A UFO?

A "BRIGHT" AREA HEAVY to the sky puzzled police and night workers in London early yesterday.

It appeared to come from "a circular object with black spots" according to police who examined it through binoculars.

SUN-STORM STRIKES

A MAGNETIC storm, started by massive gas explosions on the sun's surface, has reached Earth.

It was expected to black out radio, communications and disrupt electricity supplies in Northern latitudes including Britain.

The storm — a solar flare — covered an area more than 50 times the size of the earth's surface when it exploded.

It cannot cause danger to life.
